I've woken early today to answer a few emails and so forth before heading off on a Charity Golf Day.....

Today is my Birthday and I am 45 years young!

I'm not really into Birthdays (my lovely Stephanie Humble is though) but today I find myself reflecting on my life to date as I feel 45 may be the half way point for me in this body.

I feel so very grateful for my experiences to date.....the beautiful ones, the painful ones, and all of the ones in between.

I love where I am at right now, with the love of my life and twin flame by my side, incredibly gorgeous and loving children, and I also feel honoured to have a solid team around me in the work we do with Truthology Foundation, including our affiliation with Destiny Rescue.

So as I head off to this Charity Golf Day, I do so with a sense of completion almost.....and just can't even imagine what the rest of my life will bring me.....I haven't left too many stones unturned so far, so holy-smoke, the next passage will surely be amazing too!

Half Way Point?

You are only shooting for 90?

With advances in diet, anti Ageing and a sense of mission and purpose Mark, you may find 90 a tad 'early' to 'pass on'!... See more
